

CONVICTED OF ROBBERY, SAYS HE'LL GET DETECTIVE

"Bully of Red Hook" Loses Courage When Prosecutor Threatens to Bar Character.

Salvo Nappio, twenty-seven years old, No. 41 Carroll street, Brooklyn, said to the police to be a gangster known as "the Bully of Red Hook," was convicted of robbery and assault before County Judge May in Brooklyn today. He was accused of having held up three sailors Sept. 22 and robbed them of $120 in cash and a gold watch.

Friends of Nappio crowded the court room and interrupted the trial until Assistant District Attorney Runston appealed to the Judge to clear the court room. This was done.

When Runston, in summing up, threatened to show up the character of Nappio, the latter yelled:

"Take me out of here. Put me in the pen. I don't want to stay here."

After his conviction, Nappio turned to Detective Eason and said:

"You got me this time, but I will get you for this."

Nappio, who owns a big touring car and hires a chauffeur to drive it, is said by the police to dominate a group of men who prey on small merchants and foreign sailors frequenting foot-rooms.

Former Convicts in Jersey State Prison. HUNTON, N. J., Dec. 9.—The annual report of James H. Mulhern, principal keeper of the New Jersey State prison, shows that the total number of prisoners confined at the end of the prison year was 1,015, the smallest number at any period in five years. Plans for vocational training are embraced in the recommendations made by Mr. Mulhern.

DELAYS BAFF EXECUTION.

Prison Head Puts Off Executions to Eleventh Hour.

If the execution of Joe Cohen and Frank Farrara, convicted of the murder of Barnett Hall, the poultry man, takes place in 1920, it is pretty certain it will occur at the eleventh hour. Warden Brophy had fixed Thursday night as the time for execution, but all preparations were stopped today by Supt. of Prison Charles F. Rutledge.

Gov. Smith has not acted on the recommendation of Supreme Court Justice McIntyre for the commutation of the sentences to life imprisonment. Judge Tompkins, who tried the case, has written to the Governor saying there is no doubt of Cohen's guilt.

LOSES SUIT FOR RINGS.

Former Unlucce Says She Pawned Engagement Tokens.

Supreme Court Justice Richard P. Jordan today dismissed a suit against Miss Rose Teichner, brought by her former fiancé, Alexander S. Beck, to recover two diamond rings, valued at $500, which he presented to her as engagement tokens. The court upheld the contention of Louis R. Davidson, Miss Teichner's counsel, that his client was a minor and could not be compelled to return a gift. Miss Teichner said she pawned both rings for $175 and gave her mother the two tickets, which the mother testified, she said to a broker for $200. The $200 realized, Miss Teichner testified, was given to her mother in repayment of the money she had advanced for the approaching nuptials.

Mr. Jacob Bergman Tells How Cuticura Healed Pimples

"At the age of nineteen my face commenced to be covered with blackheads, first in a mild form and after several months small red pimples came, and in the past year my entire face, neck, chest, and back were covered. Some of the pimples were the size of peas and corruption formed in a severe form. The itching and burning, at times, were such that I almost went insane."

"I had been troubled for two years when I started to use Cuticura Soap and Ointment and after six months' use I was completely healed." (Signed) Jacob Bergman, 153 Lenox Ave., New York City.
